dispute resolution

Denison Till is a leading commercial law firm in North Yorkshire.

The dispute resolution team at Denison Till has extensive experience advising on the full spectrum of disputes. This experience combined with an in-depth knowledge of procedural law and a thorough understanding of arbitration and mediation, enables us to provide an effective and commercial approach to dispute resolution.

The department is recommended by independent legal directory The Legal 500; recent quotes include:

"The calibre of litigation work that Denison Till handles continues to impress. Among the firm's portfolio of instructions it advised one of Holland's leading flower and bulb producers, on contested winding-up proceedings" and "it advised a Turkish company in a contractual dispute with a leading international pharmaceutical company."

Approach

The dispute resolution team appreciate that it is important to identify objectives and devise a strategy at an early stage of any claim and to evaluate risk and costs. We will advise you on costs and funding, time scale and probability of outcome so that you can make informed and commercial decisions. Communication is an important part of the process and we will keep you regularly informed throughout the dispute.

Speed is often essential, particularly when commercial agreements are breached and when it is necessary to act promptly to preserve assets and to protect rights and business reputation. We will act quickly and decisively to achieve your objective.

Added value

Denison Till is committed to keeping clients fully informed on changes in the law. The firm's website is regularly updated and a programme of popular seminars and workshops provide training and advice on both specialist and topical issues. Updates on relevant legal issues are also sent out as email newsletter updates.

Commercial disputes can often be avoided if advice is taken at the pre contract stage. Our services include comprehensive advice on the drafting and negotiating of contracts to afford maximum protection to our clients' businesses.
